Sen. Taft Calls For Protective Tariffs On Imported Ware

Advocates Early Application Of Traditional Republican Policy In Talk To U.S.P.A. Convention Delegates

COUNSEL FOR POTTERS TO GIVE REPORT TODAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(Republican) Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio today had joined the cry against the administration's reciprocal trade treaties because of their damaging influence on the pottery industry.

He addressed members of the United States Potters' association in their 60th annual convention and today many delegates voiced opposition to the new deal program.

John E. Dowling of New York, tariff counsel for the association, included trade agreements and tariff issues in a report prepared for submission today.

Mr. Dowling and Malcolm W. Thompson, East Liverpool manufacturer, said they opposed the reciprocal trade program and other delegates echoed their views. Potters' manufacturers, complaining of foreign competition particularly from Japan, have sought higher tariff rates.

Worse Conditions Seen

Some of them said that under the newest trade agreement, with Great Britain, competition would become worse, because "most favored" nations would benefit.

The association, presenting 95 percent of the industry, heard Sen. Taft say at a banquet last night that while there is "no panacea" for unemployment, "one of the definite things that can be done is to protect our workmen in certain industries against a flood of imports from countries where the average wage is a small percentage of our wage."

"The pottery industry is or should be one of the leading industries of Ohio. Today many of the plants are closed, and others operating on short time, for the simple reason that more than 50 percent of the domestic market is in abject poverty," he said.

"Eighty-four percent of the imports come from Japan. Japan has 45 percent of our markets, for the principal reason that workmen in Japan are paid a 45 cents an hour, whereas the average wage in the American pottery is 75 cents an hour."

"In 1938 the Japanese imports of tableware decreased greatly, probably because of the war, but Czechoslovakian imports have tripled, and the new English treaty provides a 35 percent tariff cut on earthen ware, which will undoubtedly stimulate imports from a number of other countries."

Taft said he did not suggest general tariff increases or abandonment of reciprocal trade agreements, but "it seems to me there are some obvious places where we can apply the old home remedy of a protective tariff, and the pottery industry is one of them."

"The traditional Republican policy is a tariff equal to the difference in cost of production abroad and in the United States," Taft said. "No one has openly attacked the soundness of that policy, however difficult it is to apply it in particular cases, and it ought to be applied today."

"Whether or not we continue the reciprocal trade treaty policy, we should not permit any tariff on products whose production in the United States is established and substantial, to be reduced by any treaty below the difference in cost of production here and abroad."

"In the pottery industry, where a proper tariff policy can put many men back to work, men who are expert in their lines, men who are not in a position to be moved into any other industry, it seems evident that the tariff should be increased, even if it tends to reduce the total export from this country."

"Why should we throw men out of work in eastern Ohio in order that production of some exportable product in some other part of the

Syracuse Man Will Replace W. H. Locke Anderson

Richard Henry Pass of Syracuse today will succeed W. H. Locke Anderson of East Liverpool as president of the United States Potters' association when the nominating committee makes its report to close the 60th annual meeting at the Mayflower hotel in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Pass is now with the Onondaga Pottery Co. of Syracuse. He graduated from Harvard in 1915 with a bachelor of arts degree. He was employed by the Onondaga Pottery Co. on his graduation and has been with the company ever since.

From December, 1917, to May 1919, he was on leave of absence when he served as a lieutenant in the United States naval reserve flying corps.

In 1922 he became superintendent of the Fayette st. plant of the Onondaga Pottery Co. and became superintendent of both the Fayette st. and Court st. plants of the company in 1932.

In 1933 Mr. Pass was made vice president in charge of production and research. In December, 1929, he was elected president of Pass and Seymour, Inc., of Solway station, Syracuse, manufacturers of electrical porcelain and wiring devices. He married Miss Ruth Pennock of Syracuse, April 2, 1921, and they have five daughters.

Other officers are Charles Ray of Padon City, second vice president; B. D. Hardesty of Beaver Falls, third vice president, and Charles Goodwin of East Liverpool, secretary-treasurer. FRANCE 'SCARES OFF' REFUGEES WITH WORK

Many Reenter Spain Rather Than Face Hard Labor

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 1.—France, unwilling host to thousands of able-bodied but war-weary Spaniards, today began to put those who refused to return to Spain to work.

The first 200 Spanish government army deserters sent to the site of the French concentration camp at Argelès-Sur-Mer discovered they had to build it.

The concentration camp idea plus the sight of food trucks rolling into Spain already had sent a large number of government former soldiers back to the units they deserted.

Heavy reinforcements of French troops, nevertheless, poured into the frontier zone to barricade France against a possible mass retreat of the government armies fighting against the insurgents in Catalonia.

The insurgent drive northward from Barcelona was reported slowed down by stiffened government resistance and muddy roads, but in the center of the line Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces were said to have advanced to within five miles of Vich, highway town about 30 miles north of Barcelona and the same distance from the French border.

LABOR HITS BILL TO REVAMP JOB SURETY SYSTEM

Bricker's 'Ripper' Program Faces First Opposition To Staff Change

By The Associated Press. COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 1.—The "ripper" program of the Bricker administration faced its first formidable opposition today as organized labor lined up against a bill to reorganize the unemployment insurance system.

Spokesmen for the Ohio Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen spiked a move of the Republican leadership to put the measure through the senate this week.

The senate commerce and labor committee postponed action on the bill until next Monday after the labor representatives described it as a political patronage device and as "fundamentally unsound."

Senate Relief Vote Due Today

Lieutenant of Gov. John W. Bricker held their own in another sector, however, as the senate taxation committee recommended the $5,000,000 temporary poor relief bill for passage in substantially the same form that it passed the house. The senate was expected to vote on it today.

The committee not only retained the clause requiring the cities and counties to match state grants, dollar for dollar, but specified that they should finance January relief entirely with their present funds.

The state funds may be spent for relief only from the time the bill becomes effective until June 30. None of the money may be used to pay deficits incurred earlier, Chairman Lawrence A. Kane of the taxation committee said.

This leaves 12 counties "holding the bag" for relief deficits totaling $3,378,000 piled up last year, Kane said. City officials, who contend they do not have money even for matching, had hoped the state would help pay these deficits as it has done before.

Matching Requirement Restored

The local governments were authorized, however, to credit as matching those local funds which they spent for relief in January.

The committee eliminated the matching requirement and then hastily restored it when Speaker William M. McCulloch declared it was extremely unlikely the house would approve deletion of the clause.

The committee failed to make provision for payment of $739,000 worth of relief notes issued last year against 1939 sales tax revenue.

In the senate commerce and labor committee hearing the only person who spoke for the unemployed insurance "ripper" bill was its author, Sen. E. L. Baker (R) of Montgomery county.

He said it would promote economy by consolidation of departments and would expedite the payment of insurance benefits.

The measure would abolish the three-member Ohio unemployment compensation commission, now controlled by Democratic appointees of former Gov. Martin L. Davey, and place an administrator in charge of the insurance system. There would be a three-member board of review to pass upon claims appeals.

John Owens, president of district 6, United Mine Workers of America, and chairman of the Ohio council of the CIO, declared the bipartisan commission should be retained.

Bill Declared 'Unsound'

"We are not interested in whether a man is a democrat or a republican in the administration of this law," he said.

After describing the bill as a "fundamentally unsound" proposal which might boomerang to the Republicans' disadvantage in future administrations, he added:

"I have arrived at the conclusion that the only reason this bill was proposed was to afford an op-

GRIPPE ATTACK PUTS BORAH IN HOSPITAL

Veteran Senator Confined To Bed Since Tuesday

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Sen. William E. Borah entered emergency hospital today suffering from a "very severe case of grippe."

The 73-year-old dean of the senate was taken to the hospital in an ambulance, accompanied by Mrs. Borah and Dr. Worth Daniels, his physician, who declined immediate comment on the senator's condition. The Idaho senator was heavily wrapped in blankets and was carried into the receiving room.

Mrs. Borah, who described the senator's condition, said he had been in bed since yesterday.

Asked whether Borah had pneumonia, she said "that's what we're trying to ward off."

Aids at the senator's office said he was not expected to be able to return to work for several weeks. The 73-year-old Idaho Republican has served in the senate continuously since 1907.

COUNTY'S RELIEF FUND EXHAUSTED

$9,680 Given Subdivisions For Aid Until Feb. 15

Special To The Review. LISBON, Feb. 1.—An allocation of $9,680 made Tuesday by county commissioners exhausts available relief funds, subdivision heads were notified today.

The allocation was made on a 15-day basis and John Orr, county relief director, informed recipients no bills incurred after that date would be honored.

"This action," Mr. Orr's letter read, "is necessary because the county's relief fund is being entirely depleted to make the current allocation. Unless otherwise advised before Feb. 15, relief in your subdivision must be financed from your own funds."

Balance Dwindles

County commissioners limited the allotments to approximately half of the usual amounts when it was found that a balance of $42,000 left from last year was subject to deductions, rendering additional allocations impossible.

Relief officials stated that January bills must be met from funds now at hand. It is also necessary to provide for the continuance of surplus commodity distribution in the county during 1938 and to set aside a fund sufficiently large to permit liquidation of the present relief setup, if that is found necessary.

The depleted balance focused attention on relief measures now pending in the legislature. County commissioners who left Tuesday afternoon for Columbus to attend a convention of the state commissioners' association were expected to obtain data relative to the situation here. They will return Saturday.

Load Jumps 176 Cases

Relief allocations in the county have been made for the past several months from the sale of $109,800 in notes issued in anticipation of 1939, 1940 and 1941 collections of public utilities and other excise taxes. Officials were hopeful that a sufficient balance would remain from anticipated settlements to allow them enough to match grants, if the state relief measure takes that form.

The county's relief load jumped 176 cases, according to the estimate on which the current allotments were made. The total for the county was 1,371 cases and 3,872 individuals, compared with 1,195 cases and 3,425 individuals for January. Case loads are figured on a census in those states.

Rain or snow was forecast for tomorrow in New England, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia, Virginia, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia. Colder weather was expected to follow today's rising temperatures.

London, Paris Hail, Fascists Condemn Roosevelt's Move To Help Rearm Democracies

GERMANY, BRITAIN HINT TRADE WAR NEARS END

Peaceful Sharing Of World Markets May Result From Speech To Reichstag

By The Associated Press. LONDON, Feb. 1.—A hint that Adolf Hitler's reichstag speech might lead to a German-British peace in world trade was advanced today as the cabinet studied reaction to Premier Chamberlain's cautious proposal for a limitation of world armaments.

The suggestion of an end to trade warfare came from Robert Spear Hudson, secretary of the overseas trade department, who two weeks ago assailed the barter system Germany uses to get business as a "reversal to the practice of the middle ages."

Both Germany and England are now in bitter contest for the markets of southeastern Europe.

Hitler in his exposition of the German need of trade to feed his people declared "we must export or die," and Hudson in an address last night declared that this phrase was "one of the most encouraging things we have had for a very long time."

"I believe that—if we can re-establish confidence and remove tension—there is plenty of export trade to go around for both our countries."

"I think it may lead to a sensible arrangement being reached to develop markets at reasonable prices and a stop being put to cut-throat competition."

Political appeasement was the theme of Chamberlain's address to parliament yesterday, in which he advanced his proposal that armament reduction or at least limitation would be proof of peaceful intentions of the dictators.

While it was known that the aging Chamberlain was eager to cap his career by obtaining European armaments limitations as a business man he is shocked by the huge cost—it generally was agreed that Britain would move slowly toward this objective.

Certainly there was little possibility of a four-power discussion to include France and Italy until the end of the Spanish war.

Chamberlain welcomed the friendly tone of much of Hitler's speech, said he would discuss German "grievances"—principally colonies—if Hitler would "enter into an arrangement for limitation of armaments."

Britain meanwhile, is continuing with her own armament program which will have cost 40 billion dollars or more if continued under the present five-year program ending in 1941.

DRESS CATCHES FIRE, COUNTY WIDOW DIES

Mrs. Sue Felshaw Succumbs In Salem Tuesday

SALEM, Feb. 1.—Mrs. Sue Felshaw, 64, widow, died in the Salem City hospital Tuesday at 9:15 p. m. from first and second degree burns sustained four hours previously when her dress accidentally caught fire.

Mrs. Felshaw was found in a semi-conscious condition seated in a chair in her home at 221 Madison ave., Salem, shortly after 8 p. m. by Charles Vincent, a meter reader for the Ohio Edison Co. Mr. Vincent was delivering statements and noticed smoke coming from the partly-open door of the Felshaw home.

The woman, her clothing almost entirely burned from her body, asked him to call neighbors, who ordered her taken to the hospital. The presumption is that she was placing coal in the hearth's stove of her home when her dress was ignited, and that she was too weak to call for help.

County Coroner Arnold C. Devon of East Liverpool conducted an inquest, ruling death was accidental. The body was removed to the Arbaugh-Pearce funeral home.

Mrs. Felshaw's only surviving relative is Mrs. Walter Berg of Salem.

President Emphasizes Plan Confines Aid To Sale Of Planes And Does Not Call For Backing With Force

UNUSUAL PARLEY HELD WITH MILITARY GROUP

By The Associated Press. President Roosevelt's expressed intention to aid European democracies against any totalitarian aggression through sale of warplanes today brought scathing criticism from the dictators-controlled press of Germany and Italy and jubilant satisfaction from Great Britain and France.

The President detailed his program yesterday in Washington during an unusual conference with the senate military committee.

Roosevelt's account of French warplane purchases was described by members of the committee today as a sign of American willingness to help European democracies arm against any totalitarian invasion.

As details of the President's unusual conference with the committee trickled out, his objective in expediting sale of American-made aircraft to France was disclosed to be preservation of world peace through strengthening of democracies.

Will Sell To 'Independents'

A member of the committee said Roosevelt had indicated that the United States was prepared to sell war materials not only to England and France, but to other "independent nations" in Europe which oppose the threat of aggression by the dictators.

The senator said the conversations had centered on the non-totalitarian countries, which he said were referred to as "independent states," and had not been confined to England and France.

One conflict of opinion over what was said concerned how far the President had gone in outlining the foreign policy involved.

One member of the committee said that if he recalled the discussion, the President had said he considered that, in the event of a war, the frontiers of the United States would be in France.

Two other committeemen denied emphatically, however, that the President had said anything of this nature.

Berlin Attack Bitter

He was said to have addressed to the senators, however, that any such help would be confined largely to selling planes for cash and under no circumstances would it involve backing of any European nation with force.

At Berlin, the Berliner Nachrichtenblatt splashed the headline "America's Frontier On The Rhine" across its front page tonight and described President Roosevelt's meeting with the committee as "without example since the days of the World war."

In a two-column dispatch under a New York headline Nachrichtenblatt quoted American newspapers as saying Roosevelt had told committee members that the United States must back up democracies in any war against the totalitarian states with arms deliveries.

"Unbelievable agitation (Hetze) of Roosevelt after the Fuehrer's peace address" was a subhead on the dispatch.

Another said, "Washington stirs up the people to make business."

"This action of Roosevelt's," the dispatch said, "is without example since the days of the World war. It leaves no doubt that Roosevelt is a second Wilson who is deliberately walking in the footsteps

F. E. STANSBURY GETS FIRST JOBLESS CHECK

Man In Beechwood Receives $11.75 Compensation

The first unemployment compensation check delivered in East Liverpool was received today by Floyd E. Stansbury of Haywood ave., Beechwood.

Mr. Stansbury, who was employed at the East Liverpool Country Club, signed the pay order at the East Liverpool unemployment compensation office Monday and today received by the mail a voucher for $11.75.

The compensation payments will be made weekly for 16 consecutive weeks, but to obtain these payments the applicant must visit the unemployment office each week to certify he still is unemployed.

About 175 unemployed are being certified from the East Liverpool headquarters each day, Sharon Quigley, local manager, reported. He estimated that about 1,300 persons from East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salmville, Lisbon and East Palestine, are registered for jobless benefits at the East Liverpool office.

An applicant is not eligible for benefits until he has reported in person for four consecutive weeks when a pay order is issued to the Columbus office.

BROADER SOCIAL SECURITY AIRED

Altmeyer First Witness As Group Hearings Open

By The Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Expansion of the social security system was added today to the list of administration proposals on which congress actively is getting down to work.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, head of the social security board, was called as the first witness at hearings before the house ways and means committee. He was asked to discuss in detail the administration recommendations for:

- 1. Liberalizing the speeding up of old age insurance payments.
- 2. Extending old age insurance to several million more workers.
- 3. Providing for disability insurance and for aid to widows and orphans.

Pension Proponents To Appear. Chairman Doughton (D) of North Carolina said the hearings would be open not only to social security advocates but also to old age pension proponents. Chief among the latter are Dr. Francis E. Townsend, originator of the $200-a-month pension plan, and officials of the General Welfare association.

While the social security hearings were getting under way, the house itself was called on to decide whether a special committee to study government reorganization should be renewed at this session.

Rep. Warren (D) of North Carolina announced he would submit to the rules committee a new bill to reorganize federal agencies. He declared it would meet all the objections which caused the legislation to be shelved last year.

In the senate, committees were called into session to consider a "cost of production" farm plan and the President's attempt to revive the Florida ship canal and the Panamaquoddy power project.

Intra-Party Fight Seen. The senate judiciary committee was confronted with an intra-party fight over confirmation of Floyd Roberts, appointed a federal judge in Virginia over the objections of the state's senators.

The $725,000,000 relief bill was before the house for final action, with only the question of WPA wage differentials remaining to be settled. The house originally limited regional differentials to 25 percent, but this provision was rejected. A compromise was expected.

Mr. Roosevelt told reporters yesterday that he was modifying a previous order, so that it will exempt about 5,000 technical workers from civil service. The order, which goes into effect today, will make about 20,000 WPA employees and 45,000 other federal workers eligible for civil service.

Legislators said final enactment of the relief measure would invalidate the order insofar as it would apply to WPA employees.

HANCOCK PAIR WINS $12,000 JURY AWARD

Bus Firm Seeks New Trial In $16,500 Judgment

Special To The Review. BEAVER, Feb. 1. — Michael J. and Anna B. Seech of near Chester, were awarded a verdict of $12,000 against Alphonso DiMaggio of Midland by a jury in court here Tuesday.

DiMaggio did not appear for the trial held before visiting Judge John H. Wilson of Butler county, nor was he represented by counsel.

The plaintiffs claimed damages for injuries allegedly suffered by Mrs. Seech in a collision between her car and that of DiMaggio on the Midland-East Liverpool road, Nov. 20, 1937.

Mrs. Seech said her injuries included a broken and cut nose, severe injuries to the head and face and the loss of several teeth.

The Beaver Valley Motor Co. entered a motion for a new trial Tuesday against the verdict of $12,500 damages awarded Russell Porter and his wife, Bessie, here Jan. 26.

The company alleges that the verdict should have been against the other defendant, Domenic Cascio, who was exonerated by the jury. It alleges that if there was negligence on the part of the bus company it could only have been concurrent with the other defendant.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter entered a motion for a new trial Saturday on the $16,500 verdict, claiming it was inadequate.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter claim that she was totally disabled three years ago when she was a passenger on a bus during a collision with a truck owned by Cascio.

NEW TRAFFIC SIGNAL ERECTED AT CHESTER

40-Passenger Squad Auto Expected In Six Weeks

A new traffic light was installed Tuesday afternoon at Carolina ave. and First st., Chester, by Timothy Clapperton, chief electrician of the Chester volunteer fire department.

Mayor John S. Duffy said that no arrests will be made for failure to stop at the new light until motorists become familiar.

The light was appropriated at the last meeting of Chester council after it had been refused at six previous meetings.

The chassis of the new Chester fire squad car was delivered today at the McKay Body Co. of Grove City, Pa., for a body. The car will accommodate about 40 passengers. A special generator will power a flood lighting system and an oscillating siren.

Delivery of the completed car is expected in six weeks. The car was approved Dec. 14 by the committee of the fire department. It is E. V. Wehner, chairman, E. S. Bonjour, Arch Hall, Elmer Wellington, and Logan Wells.

Fire Chief John Hobbs, Mr. Bonjour and G. A. Arner Sr. made a trip Tuesday to the International Truck Co. of Fort Wayne, Ind., where the chassis was constructed.

NEGRO BOXER FACES QUIZ IN AUTO MISHAP

Henry Armstrong Violates Kentucky Law In Crash

By The Associated Press. COVINGTON, Ky., Feb. 1.—Kentucky State Police Sgt. Roy Osborne said today Henry Armstrong, Negro boxer, was wanted for questioning in connection with an automobile collision in which two Covington school teachers were hurt and Armstrong's car was seriously damaged.

The accident occurred during a rainstorm Sunday night near Warsaw, Ky., while the boxer was en route to Louisville. Osborne said Armstrong stopped but did not await the arrival of police as required by Kentucky law.

At Columbus, O., Armstrong, on an exhibition tour, said he had not been informed officially that Kentucky police wanted to question him concerning the accident.

Armstrong said he was not familiar with a Kentucky regulation requiring persons involved in accidents to wait at the scene until police arrived. He said that he understood no one was injured in the mishap and that he left after talking with the driver of the other car. Armstrong said his car was driven by a chauffeur.

ROTARIANS HEAR DOCTOR DISCUSS SOCIAL MEDICINE

Physicians Favor Voluntary, Not Compulsory Plan, Dr. Schoolnic Says

American medicine is based on the practice of private physicians and they must be free from the danger of bureaucracy, Dr. J. W. Schoolnic told members of the Rotary club at the Travelers hotel Tuesday noon.

In his talk on medical economics and their trend, Dr. Schoolnic discussed proposed national health legislation and defined the position of the American Medical association as favoring voluntary instead of compulsory medical insurance.

Outlines Proposals
He traced the organization of the national health survey by a committee appointed by President Roosevelt, and outlined the proposals offered by the committee as follows:

1. A decided expansion of present general health measures.
2. Expansion and improvement of maternal and child health programs.
3. Greater hospital facilities for the incurably diseased, such as tuberculosis and insane patients.
4. More and better care of the indigent.
5. Some sort of insurance to protect all in time of illness, either compulsory insurance or taxation.
6. Some type of protection, either compulsory insurance or taxation to compensate employees for loss of time by illness.

The A.M.A. approved this program except for the fifth provision at its meeting in September, Dr. Schoolnic stated.

"The association has been accused of being backward and reactionary," he stated, "but it always has had as its primary interest the best care for all and has never been antagonistic to any plan which would provide such care as long as it was ethical and efficient."

He pointed out that the medical profession in America gives an estimated $300,000,000 annually in free service and that it always has borne the burden of care for indigents.

The A.M.A., he said, agreed that the health platform is good but disagreed with its application and felt that compulsory health insurance is not the answer to the national health problem.

Millions On Relief
The speaker pointed out that there are 20,000,000 on direct relief and 20,000,000 more with marginal incomes which do not afford them medical care, but that there are 30,000,000 more in this country who can and should pay for professional medical service.

As alternatives to the platform, he said, the A.M.A. proposed a national department of health with a medical man as its secretary in the cabinet and at least a trial of voluntary health insurance.

The dangers of compulsory insurance, he felt, are the great amount of red tape required and the opening wedge for bureaucratic lay control of the profession.

"We are not hedging, but we are trying to avoid politics in medicine," he said.

Dr. Schoolnic added that a Gallup poll showed that 25,000,000 people would take out voluntary health insurance, and that such a plan had been proven satisfactory in hospital insurance. Doctors on salary, he declared, were unable to give a high grade of medical care.

The program chairman was Leon Rubin.

The Best Crime Insurance

WHY should I go to church?

A worker in the East Liverpool "go to church" visitation had that question presented to him in a home whose occupants were non-churchgoers.

We do not know how the question was answered and we do not propose here to attempt an adequate answer, for we realize, as do thousands of others in the city whose church membership and regular attendance is a constant source of comfort, that pages could be written on the subject without fully and satisfactorily explaining the spiritual and physical values that transcend human understanding and defy the art of description.

Religion is based on faith and does not lend itself easily to argument. All we can say definitely and with emphasis is that church association springs from the heart and that its fruits, which are manifold and evident on all sides, are the only testimony of its value.

From a practical standpoint—and that's the side in which most people are interested—regularity of church association has been Columbiana county's best insurance against crime. For that you have the word of Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones and Probate Judge Homer W. Hammond, whose authority on the subject should be unquestioned.

These men, together with others whose business is the enforcement of the law, call upon valuable records and rich experience to substantiate the point that only in rare and isolated cases has Columbiana county's criminal population had the advantages of close and regular association with church or Sunday school.

They find that felons, in the preponderant majority of cases, are people who either never have been exposed to religion or are not inclined to take it seriously. Further than that, they have learned that delinquent children who are given the benefits of organized supervision in either religious or other reputable organizations, are much less likely to wind up in juvenile court.

These facts are irrefutable. They stand as evidence of a religious mission well done. And they explain why 160 laymen, together with countless other reserves, representing 16 East Liverpool churches, will give of their time and effort to go into homes and invite people to go to church.

The testimony of their success will come Sunday. They deserve your honest effort to join them in the pews.

Damage And Danger

IN our haste to applaud the city's low fire loss in 1938, there is the danger of becoming so satisfied with conditions as they exist that the real needs of the fire department—more men and better equipment—will be obscured.

In a sense, the meager damage of $13,261 reported for the year stands as a warning that good fortune may have contributed as much to the three-year low as any particular care of the city's residents or vigilance and skill of its fire fighters.

Nobody honestly can deny that Chief Bryan and his staff have done a fine job and are deserving of praise, but even they would be the last to contend the record is evidence of any superior strategy or ability on their part.

Truthfully, the year failed to produce a fire that tested the need for a larger staff. If it had, we are confident the inadequacy of the present setup would have been demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt.

We hope the test never comes. We hope a way can be found to augment both manpower and equipment before such an emergency arises. Our only concern is that satisfaction and complacency will keep the issue in the background, where it may lie for lack of attention.

Fire is a city's worst peril and eternal vigilance is the cost of control. Reasonable safety emerges as the fruits of a combination of factors, not the least of which is care in the home.

Expect the best from your fire department, but first give it men and equipment with which to work, and then a measure of cooperation by observing the elementary rules of caution.

Antidote

SUMNER WELLES, undersecretary of state, has made an official reply to the accusation that the United States has no foreign policy. Its policy is maintenance of peace, he says.

That description is vague. Everything being done in the world today is in the name of peace, believe it or not. Even Germany and Italy, hotbeds of martial spirit, are paying lip service to the dove of peace.

Mr. Welles undoubtedly is sincere, but it is not untimely to remember one of the lessons of the World War. The American people, then as now, had a tremendous capacity for moral indignation. Propaganda which Mr. Welles suspects is being used today, brought them to the boiling point more quickly but it wasn't essential. They were capable of generating their own heat.

Foreign policy is determined by political expediency. The United States will be devoted to maintaining peace until and unless popular opinion makes that an untenable position. President Wilson "kept the country out of war" until it became evident that the country no longer wanted to stay out of war.

The United States needs a greater interest in minding its own business, to go along with its capacity for moral indignation. If it had that quality in abundance, propagandists couldn't get to first base. There would be little danger of moral indignation boiling over.

On The Record

We Don't Need Slash In Relief Fund, But Clear Analysis Of Why The Rolls Remain So Enormous

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Miss Thompson

WHAT we need is not a cut in appropriations for relief but an analysis of why the relief rolls remain so enormous at all points of the business cycle.

The center of interest ought to be how to produce greater productive employment. It is our continued huge unemployment is not of act of God but the result of policies. If it is the result of policies, then by all means let us reconsider them.

The PWA is an attempt to create jobs for workers at subsistence wages. A real national employment policy would concentrate on creating an economic situation in which jobs for workers at normal wages would naturally occur.

It is just this economic situation which has not, after six years of reform and recovery, materialized. We have a stagnant economy. It has become stabilized and rigid within, of course, a certain area of high and low.

This is, no doubt, partly due to the relative stability, at long last, of our population.

It is also due, as Mr. Lippman pointed out the other day, to the effort to stabilize all prices at a high level, whether they be prices of farm and industrial products or prices of labor.

The area in which the worker can survive, employed, therefore becomes smaller.

Above and beyond that, we have adopted anti-employment policies. And we shall never radically reduce the relief rolls until we abandon these policies and remove the obstacles to the functioning of the economic process.

One such anti-employment policy is government competition with private industry.

From the viewpoint of obtaining the largest possible use of capital and labor, a case can be made for socialism and a case can be made for private industry. But no case can be made of competition between them, as we at present have in the utility industry.

In our economy there is 19 to 20 times as much private capital invested in the utilities as there is government capital and government competition therefore prevents far more employment than it can possibly substitute.

By subsidies and gifts for duplication of existing facilities by municipalities and other agencies, it prevents the release and expansion of existing utilities.

Nor is the answer for the government to buy out part of the utilities—whether at a high price or a low price. The latter question is not of the essence of the matter.

If the government wants to prevent a coagulation of the blood of the utility industry it must either buy them all out or buy out none and stop competing.

For if it buys out some of them, all the others will be affected.

As far as technological unemployment is concerned, numerous government policies add to it.

For instance, it has been proved that the development of electric power by water uses far less man power than the development of electric power by steam. Ninety-two percent of the cost of hydroelectric power is capital charges and amortization. Capital charges for steam power are hardly more than 34 percent.

Our taxation policies also ought to be reconsidered for their effect on employment.

I have always been convinced that the financing of unemployment insurance and old-age pensions out of payroll taxes, instead of out of general taxation, definitely contributes to technological unemployment.

It puts a premium on the use of machines.

Some labor-saving devices actually mean a greater use of labor—over the whole economy—others mean less.

But a policy bent on increasing employment would not tax payrolls. It would do the exact opposite. It would grant tax reductions for increased payrolls. It would use the tax power to create employment incentives.

The liberalization of our taxation structure would also give incentives to capital employment.

Actually, both government budgets and corporation taxes ought to be planned over a business cycle.

British corporations are allowed to average their taxes over a certain number of years—six I believe. They can therefore afford to spend money even on the downgrade of the cycle, because they get credit on the upgrade. Our industries, because of the tax system, cannot do this.

Britain actually has a higher rate of corporation tax, but because the industries can average it they really pay this rate, whereas in this country, over a period of several years in which years of loss predominate, it is possible, that with a rate of 15 percent, an industry may actually pay in taxes 50 percent of its averaged earnings.

We also need a radical reconsideration of trade union policies and plans for the training or retraining of workers for industries where they will be needed.

If, for instance, we should go into a great housing expansion the effect would not be, under present conditions, a vast expansion of employment.

THE effect would be to raise the pay of a limited labor monopoly.

Trade-union policy at present makes it difficult, if not impossible, to shift workers from depressed industries to reviving trades.

In Great Britain the unemployment assistance boards constantly moved workers from depressed industries to the expanding building trades and the result was that, despite an enormous housing boom, wages were kept relatively stable, while employment was immensely augmented.

An unemployed worker cannot take a job in the building trades here without paying his back dues and these may be more than he can earn in months of work, and certainly he will not have them on hand.

Such union restrictions are anti-employment measures and a way whereby a privileged oligarchy of workers condemn their brothers to the WPA.

We might also consider, in the place of some of our WPA expenditures, giving grants-in-aid to industries for the training of apprentices, including, of course, safeguards that workers passing certain tests would be retained by the industries and the subsidies for them stopped.

The present system of work relief is depriving thousands of the skills they possess and, with very few exceptions, producing no new skills for those who come on the rolls without equipment for modern industrial life.

Henry S. Denton, Lincoln Filene, Ralph E. Flanders and Morris E. Leeds have done extremely constructive thinking on this matter of unemployment in a book which has been recently published by the McGraw-Hill Book Co. and which is called "Toward Full Employment."

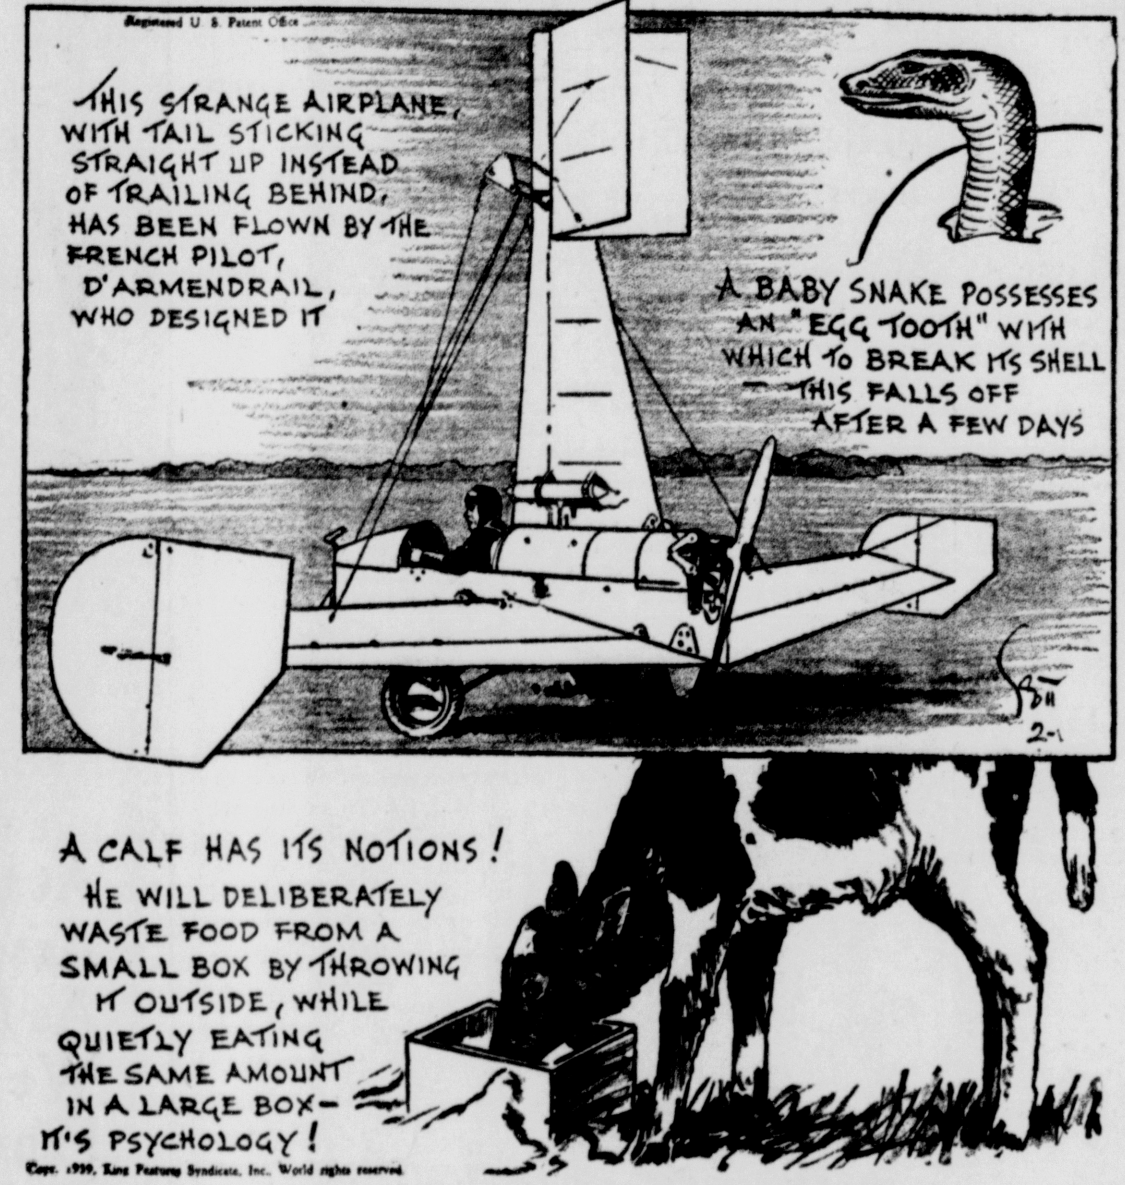

Written by liberals who are, at the same time, practical businessmen, it certainly does not support our present means of dealing with unemployment—nor do the results.

It would seem advisable for the competent committees of congress to equip themselves with an expert commission to draw up a report and recommendations on the whole subject, which is easily the most vital one in American life.

Caught In Their Own Trap

Fellows Like Nye And Others Find Selves In Tangle Over Neutrality

NOT in a long time have certain members of congress been so much caught in a mill of their own making as in the case of the so-called neutrality act.

Just now it is especially painful to members like Sen. Nye of North Dakota who are distressed over how the act has injured loyalist Spain, but are hauled another way by their original wish to keep the United States entirely out of the struggles of foreign powers.

Thus they were more than pleased when Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of state (under Hoover), advanced a plan which offered them an "out" even if it left their original principles somewhat tangled.

Fundamentally the neutrality act is based on the supposition that the country cannot trust a president in his conduct of foreign affairs. It had its origin in investigations of the munitions committee, which Nye headed. Several committee members came to the conclusion that President Wilson was bamboozled into leading the United States into war on the side of the allies by the machinations of bankers and munitions makers.

Nye president, they asserted, can withstand such tremendous pressure. So the neutrality act was designed to prevent any groups from gaining a profit from a foreign war, thus avoiding any financial interest in it which would need U. S. protection.

The neutrality act, originally did not apply to civil wars, but the alarming prospect that Spain might become the starting place for a new world war excited congress to enact a special resolution as soon as it came into session in January, 1937. It prohibited shipment of arms and munitions to either side in Spain. Later the regular neutrality act was amended to include civil wars.

It developed after that that the real problem in Spain, so far as the United States was concerned, was the fact that Italy and Germany were supplying munitions to insurgents while loyalist Spain, a friendly government recognized by the U. S. had only inadequate supplies.

What was most painful to neutrality advocates was the fact that the winning side was favored by totalitarian states whose ideology is so sharply at conflict with democracy in the U. S.

That made Nye and associates willing to overlook their earlier insistence on an attitude of hands-off-no-matter-what-happens. They could not act, and that any change would have to come through congress.

Now Stimson advances the suggestion that it is not the shipment of arms to Spain that endangers the peace of the United States but the real danger is the embargo which helps the totalitarian foes of loyalist Spain to win. Moreover, he warned (as warnings have been issued before) that it was setting a bad precedent to refuse to ship arms to a friendly state trying to put down a rebellion.

His interpretation would shift to the President the responsibility for lifting the Spanish embargo. And the neutrality group favored his interpretation.

Quite aside from all this, it now might be asked who is putting the heat on the President, the bankers and munitions makers—or others?

THIS is a list of 32 names. The first three and the last five are well known. Some of the other 24 are well known, too. Read the list to see if you can spot what it is that all the men mentioned have in common.

When you find out, select six or eight names at random and try some other member of the family. It's a stunt performed recently on a radio program in which experts answer questions. Not a single expert recognized four names selected from this list:

John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Aaron Burr, George Clinton, Elbridge Gerry, Daniel D. Tompkins, John C. Calhoun, Martin Van Buren, Richard M. Johnson, John Tyler, George M. Dallas, Millard Fillmore, William R. King, John C. Breckinridge, Hannibal Hamlin, Andrew Johnson, Schuyler Colfax, Henry Wilson, William A. Wheeler, Chester A. Arthur, Thomas A. Hendricks, Levi P. Bugs Explains

Damon Believes Humorist Was Right When He Said Fans Came Merely To See John Henry Hit Canvas

By DAMON RUNYON

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER has explained in a few terse lines something that had us greatly puzzled. It was about the fight between Joe Louis and John Henry Lewis, which drew all the customers that could be wedged into Madison Square Garden, and cash money of a hundred-odd thousand dollars.

When the arrangement for that prizefight was first made and thereafter until it was all over, it was generally understood by the public that John Henry Lewis had practically no chance of defeating Joe Louis. The latter, as you are perhaps aware, is heavyweight champion of the world, and as those things go is an outstanding genius.

Prizefighting has been going on in one form and another since the dawn of what we call civilization. From the death-dealing spikes that they put on the hands of the gladiators in the days of the Romans, the pastime has been modified to a slight padding of the fists, but in general form the game remains the same. The fundamental idea is for one prize fighter to knock the other unconscious.

It is agreed that in the execution of this idea, Joe Louis, a young man with skin the color of coffee with cream in it, has had no superior in the memory of living man. If they still used the spikes of the Romans and we had our current laws, he would have been up for murder long ago. Even with leather and horse hair padding on his fists, Joe Louis is a dangerous man.

WHAT puzzled us about the situation that presented Joe Louis performing the offices of his position as heavyweight champion on John Henry Lewis before a crowded house and a fat gate was this: What took all those customers there when they knew in advance what was going to happen?

We even debated the question with some of the cash customers in the ringside seats before the thing started. They had paid $16.50 each for those seats. We were in on a press pass and our own reason for being there was more or less professional, which did not apply to the cash customers.

None of those we interrogated offered anything more than a jocular explanation. One chap who was good enough to take us seriously said he was there on the possibility, vague as it might be, that something would happen to upset the dope and he did not want to miss it. He said he had seen 100 to 1 shots come bowing down there before.

Still another said he just liked to see champions perform. He said he was the kind of fellow who would pay money to see Seabiscuit or War Admiral run against a plater or to hear a great singer, even if he knew the singer had a cold and would not be up to his real form.

WE WERE not fully satisfied with these explanations, however. We felt that something deeper underlay the presence of these customers. We worried about it until we picked up Arthur "Bugs" Baer's comments on the prizefight. He said: The fight was to a capacity house attracted by the same morbid curiosity that makes people surround the tiger's cage at meal time in the zoo.

We guess that was it, all right. The same curiosity, equally morbid, that causes people to pay money to see any exhibition in which there is a distinct element of danger to human life and limb. It is this morbid curiosity on which promoters of dangerous exploits once thrived with such presentations as the human fly, looping-the-loop, high divers, parachute jumps, slides-for-life, high wire performances, and things like that.

The same appeal to morbidity is still retained to some extent in circuses with their aerial and animal acts and the fellow being shot out of a cannon. You find it in the wild west rodeos and in automobile racing. We are inclined to doubt that the average person would go to see an event in which he was guaranteed the killing or maiming of a fellow human being, yet it is that very possibility that seems to attract the crowds.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer is the greatest of our American humorists, living or dead, but like all true humorists a great deal of philosophy and knowledge of human nature underlie his funny cracks, as you can see by the remark that cleared up our puzzlement.

By the way we saw Walter Winchell, the columnist, after the Louis-Lewis matter and told him we knew for a fact that Joe likes John Henry very much. Walter said:

"My goodness, what would he do to a fellow he didn't like?"

The Mary Celeste Again

(An Editorial In The Washington Post)

ANOTHER effort, it seems, is being made to solve the riddle of what happened two thirds of a century ago aboard the American brig, Mary Celeste. This is one of the great mysteries of the seas and deservedly a perennial favorite.

Early in November, 1872, the Mary Celeste sailed from New York for Genoa. Her cargo was alcohol. Aboard here were Capt. Benjamin Briggs, his wife and small daughter and a crew of seven. The weather was unusually good for the time of year and the log showed nothing to indicate that the first part of the voyage was anything but serene.

About two weeks before Christmas the Dei Gratia, a British brigantine, then about 300 miles off Gibraltar, sighted a smaller vessel, tacking about aimlessly with all sails set. It was the Mary Celeste. Capt. Morehouse of the Dei Gratia gave the usual signals, but there was no response. As the ship drew closer he studied the decks of the Mary Celeste through his glasses but could perceive no signs of life. Much perplexed by all this, Capt. Morehouse ordered a boat lowered.

Aboard the Mary Celeste the investigating party found every sign of human occupation—except human beings. In the fore-cabin was one partly consumed dinner and in the master's cabin another. In the mate's cabin were two watches on top of a locker, and the story goes they were still running when found. An open sewing machine had its needle in a half-finished child's garment. The ship's safe was untouched; the cargo was intact. Nowhere was there any sign of disorder or mutiny.

The only possible clues were a sword which had on its blade traces of something that might have been blood, some strange marks cut into the rail and the ship's log from which the last presumably written page had been torn. But far from throwing light upon the mystery, these things intensified it.

Innumerable conjectures, including a story by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, have been made concerning what might have happened aboard the Mary Celeste. None seems in the least plausible. Now one George Osborne, an Englishman, is attempting to prove that what happened to the Mary Celeste was perfectly normal. He is said to believe the Mary Celeste might have gone aground on the African coast and later been released by shifting sands, with her crew ashore and carried out on an ice slide.

With all respect, one may hope that this theory gets nowhere. It would be much like proving that the Man in the Iron Mask (it was really a velvet mask, you know) was just abnormally sensitive to draughts, poor fellow. The solution of a really great and fascinating mystery almost invariably turns out to be something rather silly and uninteresting. It is behind seemingly dull and commonplace events, such as the daily incidents of the drug business, that wild and incredible realities lie hidden.

A good character, when established, should not be rested in an end, but only employed as a means of doing still farther good.—Atterbury.

MARKET'S 2-DAY RALLY HITS SNAG

Stocks Drop Before Halting For Breathing Spell

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 1. — A steep two-day rally seemed to have exhausted the stock market's strength and it fell back a pace or two today before halting for a breathing spell.

Brokers leaned to the view the setback could be ascribed chiefly to the market's loss of "technical" strength as result of shortcovering the last two days. At the same time, further study of the foreign situation convinced some analysts war dangers still were great in Europe but many held hopes the major powers would get around the table for settlement of the colonial question after the Spanish conflict ends.

Conspicuous in the setback — as they had been on the rally — were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Union Carbide, Montgomery Ward, Kennecott Copper, Youngstown Sheet and General Electric.

Business comment took on a somewhat brighter tone following the rebound in the markets yesterday and Monday.

"Iron Age" said the steel trade, with the easing of political tension in Europe, was "confident of further improvement during February and March."

Weekly electric power figures showed further expansion.

CHURCH GROUPS SCAN INTERRACIAL PROBLEM

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 1. — A discussion of interracial problems occupied clergymen and church women attending the annual Ohio Pastors' convention and Conference of Church Women today. Highlighting the program was a luncheon with Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard university, Washington, speaking.

Meeting in joint session, the groups last night heard Dr. Bernard Clausen, pastor of the First Baptist church of Pittsburgh, declare that "democracy cannot be saved in a day" and that he believed "we shall live to see our sons killed in war." He said that there was a "great need for people willing to be hurt, to sacrifice to attain the ends of democracy."

STEADY IMPROVEMENT NOTED IN STEEL MILLS

Special To The Review.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. — "Iron Age" said today in its weekly summary that a gradual improvement in steel buying in January has turned ingot production upward after last week's minor recession with the rate now estimated at 5 1/2 percent of capacity, a rise of a point and a half for the nation's mills.

Railroad buying still is counted on as one of the most cheering prospects though automotive purchases of steel by late February are also looked forward to as one of the developments that will assist in pushing steel production upwards.

Tin plate production is about 45 percent of capacity.

HITLER

There was speculation in banking and trade circles, without any official interpretation of his new duties, that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht might become Germany's "sales agent."

Upon his removal last month as economics minister the financial leader was delegated to "special tasks."

Hitler made the need of export a question of life for the nation in his reichstag address. Germany must "export in order to buy food-stuff," he said.

He made the demand upon Britain and France for return of Germany's war lost colonies, but he said this question could not cause a war and he went further to state that the export question was the more immediate.

Lower rates on LOANS

over $100

No co-signers or endorsers
No embarrassment or delay

When you borrow, you should know these facts about small loan rates. The Small Loan Law of this state permits a certain maximum rate to be charged for a loan. On all loans of more than $100 Household Finance does not charge the full rate!

Check these savings

Suppose you need $140. At the lawful maximum rate the cost of your loan for 30 days is $4.20. At Household's lower rates the charge is $3.80—a saving of 40c. On a loan of $200 the cost for 30 days at the lawful maximum rate is $6.00. At Household's rates the charge is $5.00—a saving of $1.00 (Thirty day loans are used as examples for convenience. Loans for longer terms naturally cost less per month.)

You may apply to Household Finance for a loan of $20 to $300. You need no stocks, bonds or other bankable security. No one need sign with you (married couples sign together). You get your loan without delay and without embarrassment to you.

Don't Get a Loan until you read these features of the Household Finance Loan Plan

1. Anyone may apply to Household Finance for a loan of $20 to $300 on furniture, car or auto.

2. You do not need co-maker or endorser. No salary or wage assignment required.

3. Quick action. No tedious waiting.

4. Small monthly payments. Example: $6.00 first month, decreasing each month to $5.00 last month, repays a $100 loan in 20 months, including charges, provided principal is repaid as agreed.

5. Household Finance's monthly charge is less than the lawful maximum on all loans above $100.

6. Loan may be repaid ahead of schedule to reduce the cost. Charge is made on paid balance only.

IT'S HERE! The NEW Firestone CHAMPION TIRE

with the NEW Safety-Lock Cord Body and NEW Gear-Grip Tread

Stronger Cord Body
More Non-Skid Mileage

Plus FAMOUS TRIPLE-SAFE CONSTRUCTION

FLOYD ROBERTS
1938 National Race Champion

Champion race drivers, whose very lives and chances of victory depend on tire safety, know tire construction and that is why they select and buy Firestone Tires for their racing cars.

FIRESTONE triumphs again! This time with the new Firestone Champion, the tire that sets the safety standards for 1939. This new tire provides a combination of safety features never before built into a tire. It is a completely new achievement in safety engineering.

From the experience gained on the speedways of the world and in the Firestone laboratories, Firestone engineers have developed a revolutionary new type of cord body called Safety-Lock, which provides amazingly greater strength. This outstanding achievement makes possible the use of a thicker, tougher, deeper tread which assures much greater non-skid mileage. Because of this new Safety-Lock Cord body and Gear-Grip tread, the modern streamlined Firestone Champion Tire establishes completely new standards of blowout protection, non-skid safety, silent operation and long mileage.

The Firestone Champion Tire embodies the famous Firestone Triple-Safe construction — you get the exclusive and patented Firestone construction features of Gum-Dipping, two extra layers of Safety-Lock cords under the tread and Gear-Grip tread design. Never in all the history of tire building has there been such a triple-safe combination to protect you against the dangers of blowouts, punctures and skidding.

Come in today and equip your car with a set of new Firestone Champion Tires — the only tires made which are safety proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

REVIVAL HEAD SPEAKS ON 'GREAT SALVATION'

Dr. Jordan Carter, Wilmore, Ky., evangelist, spoke on "The Great Salvation" Tuesday night in the First Methodist Protestant church evangelistic campaign and said God saves the worst sinner or a child with the same ease. He will speak again tonight.

"This salvation is free, but not cheap, and cannot be purchased even though one had all of the gold buried in my native Kentucky," he said. "It is strange that people do not understand the fact that they can not have salvation except by coming to God and believing in Him."

His sermon was preceded by a song service directed by M. V. Lewis, also of Wilmore, Ky., who sang, "It would seem as if God is a little partial to sinners, as one writer recently said, in that His son, Jesus Christ, died for them upon the cross. He died for all, but only those who accept Him in faith will merit the great salvation prepared for them."

SIDELITES OF LIFE

By The Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA — A man with a bottle of liquor in his hand sped down a street, pursued by Patrolman John Lynch. Lynch fired a shot into the air. The runner dropped his bottle and it smashed on the pavement. He stopped abruptly. "Gosh," he said as Lynch approached, "if I'd known you could shoot so straight I wouldn't have run."

Stowaway

NEW LISBON, IND. — Stormy weather drove birds of a different feather together here. Mrs. George Van Buskirk saw a robin fly away from a fence near her farm house and head for the chicken house in a stiff wind. Later she went out to gather eggs. Under the wings of a nesting hen she found the robin huddled.

Cold Statistics

CHICAGO — Chicago's Monday snowfall put some statistically-minded persons to work and the results were gigantic and almost incredible.

All the snow which fell on the 202 square miles of the city (14.9 inches) piled on an area the size of the loop (156 acres) would make a pyramid 3,210 feet high.

If the 269,146,092 cubic yards of snow covering the city were put on scales they would register 22,877,418 tons.

Man-Eater

LOS ANGELES — G. Harold Janeway has three stitches in his wrist to prove he was bitten by a man-eating shark in a hotel lobby.

The 25-foot fish was a skeleton on exhibition. Janeway stuck his hand into its mouth. The jaw snapped shut and seven rows of sharp teeth did their work.

Jefferson county was allocated $2,168, Carroll county $367, Belmont $2,316, Harrison $424, Mahoning $5,709, Trumbull, $2,997 and Stark $4,756.

STATE

Earl Derr Biggers' famous character, Charlie Chan, is played for the first time by Sidney Toler in the mystery opening today at the State theater. "Charlie Chan in Honolulu."

Toler was selected for the role from among hundreds of fine actors proposed to carry on the tradition of Chan's screen adventures, and according to reports from those who saw the film at its Hollywood preview, is an excellent choice.

The cast surrounding Toler in the picture includes Phyllis Brooks, Sen Yung, Elsie Collins, John King, Claire Dodd, George Zucco, Robert Barrat and Marc Lawrence. Gracie Fields, filmdom's gayest feminine funster, who recently scored in "We're Going to Be Rich," has her best picture to date in "Smiling Along," merry musical production, which completes the bill.

ITALY SEEKS BETTER TRADE RELATIONSHIPS

Duce Revises Pacts With Many Nations

By The United Press.

ROME—To develop foreign markets and acquire much-needed raw materials as far as possible on the barter system, Italy is revising old commercial accords and making new ones.

In December, the Italian government signed new trade agreements with Rumania, Denmark and Uruguay.

Italo-American trade is carried on with some difficulty since it is only regulated by the 1937 "modus vivendi" which both parties recognize as inadequate and more of an obstacle than a stimulus to trade. As yet, however, no new commercial accords are in view.

In the South and Central American fields, Italian products find good markets. Largest buyers from Italy are Brazil, Chile, Columbia, Venezuela and Ecuador.

Business with Argentina, which was flourishing before, has been declining during the past six months.

New accords with Czechoslovakia are being negotiated. It is reported to replace those in force before the Sudeten annexation.

Exportation to Great Britain, which was hoped here would be increased following the 1935 commercial agreement, does not sufficiently offset the importation of British goods.

It is believed in some financial quarters that it would be advisable to revise the accords or diminish the importation of British goods until Italian products find a better market in England.

JUDGE DENIES DIVORCE BASED ON EVANGELISM

SPECIAL TO THE REVIEW. LISBON, Feb. 1.—Judge W. F. Lones in common pleas court here Tuesday denied the divorce petition of James Clutter of Calcutta, against Mrs. Clutter who is widely known as a girl evangelist in the Pentecostal faith.

Mr. Clutter contended his wife's preoccupation with preaching prevented her from maintaining their home. Mrs. Clutter, who preaches under the name of Mary Louise Pake, said she would give up her evangelistic career if her husband would consent to a reconciliation.

They were married in East Liverpool in June, 1937, and separated last October. She returned to her parents at Uhrichsville. Judge Lones deferred setting alimony pending a possible reconciliation. The jurist ruled that "preaching the word of God is no ground for divorce" although he said her career apparently did interfere with her home.

LONDON

of his Democratic predecessor in office.

Paris Uses Scare Headlines
As a result of these conversations it is clear that the United States finally has broken with its neutrality policy.

"The intervention policy of Washington in European matters has become a fact. Yesterday's committee session thus assumes a fundamental importance for Germany and her friendly totalitarian nations. Washington yesterday officially became the center of war-inciting hatred against totalitarian states."

First editions of afternoon newspapers in Paris used scare headlines to proclaim that President Roosevelt had declared the "frontiers of the United States are in France."

Although members of the government refused to comment on reports of the President's meeting with the committee on the ground that his statements were to a closed session, there was undoubted jubilation in official circles.

The stock exchange reacted favorably, with stocks rising several points in the early hours of trading as soon as newspapers had printed accounts of the meeting.

The British press showed satisfaction over the meeting. Emphasis was given to reports that Roosevelt had said he intended to aid European democracies in every possible way short of war in any conflict with dictators.

Roosevelt Speaks Plainly
Such headlines as "Roosevelt To Aid Democracies," and "Our Frontiers are France—Roosevelt," stretched across the front pages of London evening papers.

The Italian press accused the President of "warmongering pessimism."

With 18 members of the committee gathered in a circle around him, the President was reported to have spoken plainly on the foreign and domestic policies underlying the proffered aid to a French mission in obtaining planes from private manufacturers in this country.

The senators, who went away hungry after an hour's session at lunch time, said Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that sales of planes to foreign governments would provide employment and prepare this country for the mass production of aircraft called for in the defense program.

He then was said to have declared that the government considered it the wisest policy to aid European democracies to rearm so that they could balk threats of war by being prepared for any eventuality.

There were strong indications, however, that the President's explanation of the government's interest in the French mission had not still stirred minority criticism of the move within the committee.

Secrecy Draws Criticism
This criticism took the form of protests against the secrecy which has cloaked committee investigation of the matter as well as the White House conference. One senator said he was considering walking out of further closed sessions, if the record of previous ones was not made public.

"To be sworn to secrecy at a time when there is much to be said is more distressing than you can know," Sen. Nye (R) of North Dakota told reporters after the White House meeting.

The President explained at the conference, committee members said, that his instructions to the treasury and other departments to aid a French air mission had been sent in the form of a memorandum.

Mr. Roosevelt was quoted by senators as reminding the committee that as commander-in-chief of the army and navy he had authority to approve or disapprove sales to France.

Asked at his press conference whether the government would have approved sales of planes to Germany or Italy, Mr. Roosevelt said that was an "if" question. No such orders, he pointed out, have been received.

The President told reporters that no military secrets were divulged in making the French sales.

The President's discussion was not limited to the European situation, it appeared. He expressed concern over the question of Nazism in Latin America and advocated increase in United States' trade there to overcome it.

BRICKER REFUSES AID, KILLER TO DIE TONIGHT

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 1.—Gov. John W. Bricker announced today that he would not intervene in the scheduled electrocution at Ohio penitentiary tonight of John W. Cline of West Elkton, convicted of slaying Patrolman Aaron Laubach of Hamilton Jan. 27, 1938.

Bricker said he acted upon the recommendation of a clemency board which held after a hearing that there were no grounds for intervention. Counsel for Cline had sought commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Laubach was shot to death during an attempted filling station holdup.

portunity for appointment of political aspirants to positions."

Thomas J. Donnelly, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Federation of Labor, said he, too, was not "interested in partisan politics" and felt that unless there was public demand for a change, "you should not upset this law just as benefit payments are beginning."

And, he added, "the public has demonstrated no such demand."

Donnelly said labor and employers had agreed upon the present setup and that both Democrats and Republicans voted for it.

William Racey of Sandusky, representative of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, said he believed unemployment compensation jobs were being given to Democrats and Republicans in compliance with the civil service laws.

"The employers and employees should have something to say and not let the politicians run the entire show," he declared.

The committee amended the bill to increase the administrator's salary from $6,000 a year to $7,500 and fixed the salary of the board of review members at $4,500 a year.

Whitmore Act Advanced

Bills to extend the liquid fuel and cigarette taxes through March 31, 1941, were back in the house today for concurrence in amendments after receiving the senate's unanimous approval. The senate knocked out clauses which earmarked the revenue for schools.

The senate also voted to reenact the Whitmore act. The bill, which would be effective until June 30, 1940, would allow the payment by installments of delinquent real estate taxes.

The proposal of Sen. William Boyd (D) of Cuyahoga county for a legislative investigation of gambling, particularly in Cuyahoga county, was discarded in the senate rules committee. The committee agreed to recommend appointment of a committee to draft legislation for strengthening the anti-gambling statutes and for authorizing the governor to remove a sheriff who did not enforce the laws.

Boyd said this was the objective of his proposed investigation.

Schools receiving state aid under the school foundation program would be paid their Feb. 28 allocations in cash under a bill introduced by Rep. J. Harry McGregor, house Republican floor leader. He proposed a three-month appropriation of $12,600,000 from the general revenue fund. Heretofore the schools have received mostly state notes on which they borrowed money from the banks.

McGregor also proposed the creation of a legislative committee to draft a relief program for 1938-40 within 45 days.

The house passed two bills: One by Rep. Elrick (D) of Cuyahoga county to require that tax levy questions on ballots show the amount of the proposed tax in dollars and cents as well as mills; the other by Rep. Petr (D) of Crawford county to require that appeals from probate courts be taken directly to the courts of appeals. Both bills go to the senate.

The labor leaders, Donnelly and Owens, were representing rival organizations, joined hands for a "second front."

Bricker said he acted upon the recommendation of a clemency board which held after a hearing that there were no grounds for intervention. Counsel for Cline had sought commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment.

the 16th anniversary of the Fascist militia's organization.

While a brief speech had been expected by many, the lack of one occasioned no great surprise. Diplomatic quarters in the last few days have come to the belief that Premier Mussolini would mark time until the end of the Spanish war before giving any official indications of what plans he might have—plans which agitation by the Fascist press have indicated revolved about a demand upon France to grant colonial concessions in Africa.

Machine-guns and artillery set up a deafening din as Il Duce strode up the broad marble steps to open the ritual.

Machine-gun fire sounded again each time he stepped forward to pin decorations on the black-garbed widows and mothers, many of them with trembling hands as they gave the Fascist salute.

IL DUCE

the 16th anniversary of the Fascist militia's organization.

While a brief speech had been expected by many, the lack of one occasioned no great surprise. Diplomatic quarters in the last few days have come to the belief that Premier Mussolini would mark time until the end of the Spanish war before giving any official indications of what plans he might have—plans which agitation by the Fascist press have indicated revolved about a demand upon France to grant colonial concessions in Africa.

Machine-guns and artillery set up a deafening din as Il Duce strode up the broad marble steps to open the ritual.

Machine-gun fire sounded again each time he stepped forward to pin decorations on the black-garbed widows and mothers, many of them with trembling hands as they gave the Fascist salute.

CANDIDACY OF TISHER IRKS TAX COMMISSION

Board Charges Local Man Violated Regulations

The state civil service commission in Columbus today complained to the tax commission that Ross Tisher, East Liverpool senior sales tax examiner, had violated civil service regulations by running for county auditor in the fall elections.

Mr. Tisher, Democrat, was defeated by Shelton J. Overdorf, also of East Liverpool, Republican, who will resign his city auditorship for the county post March 13.

The tax commission promised to make an investigation. A similar complaint was made when Charles Snyder of Salem, county engineer, entered the elections while employed in the state highway department.

The tax commission said lack of funds prompted the dismissal of two deputy commissioners, Roy E. Wildermuth of Columbus, and G. Ray Moreheart of Toledo.

Mr. Wildermuth, former chairman of the old state relief commission, was receiving $3,600 a year, and Mr. Moreheart, in charge of the Toledo intangible tax division of office, $2,400.

By The Associated Press.
FREMONT, O., Feb. 1.—The mother, sister and brother of Rex Bush testified today at the first degree murder trial of the 20-year-old Montone, Ind., youth that his character was good.

They were three of 12 persons from his home town who occupied the stand as character witnesses. He is charged with slaying Marshal Neal D. Fowler at Clyde O. last Dec. 6 after a 73-cent gasoline station holdup.

Mrs. Elsie Bush, his mother, sobbed continually during her brief appearance. She said the youth's father had been in an infirmary eight years. The sister, Lova, 21, student at a Chicago Bible school, and brother, Jack, 23, student at Purdue university also said Bush's character was good.

BRITAIN ASKS JAPAN EXPLAIN SHIP SEIZURE

By The Associated Press.
SHANGHAI, Feb. 1.—British naval authorities today asked the Japanese for an immediate explanation of the seizure of the British freighter Saint Vincent De Paul Monday.

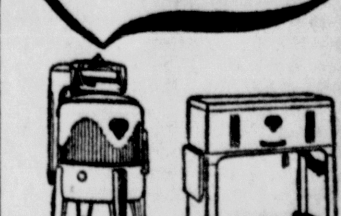

The master of the British vessel, upon his arrival here today, reported two Japanese destroyers escorted the Saint Vincent De Paul to Tsingtao after she had been seized by a customs vessel.

At Tsingtao, despite British representations, the Japanese refused to permit the Saint Vincent De Paul to leave until the British Cruiser Birmingham was ordered to the scene from Weihaiwei. The Birmingham escorted the freighter most of the way to Shanghai.

The Sunlit Road

By TOM T. JONES

MRS. ELIZABETH AGNER of West Fourth st., oldest member of St. John's Lutheran church celebrated her 90th birthday.

Palm Beach Fla. recently by taking her first airplane ride and by being entertained with a garden party at the home of friends in the southland.

Mrs. Agner is spending the winter with her daughter and her husband Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schreiber, at 419 K st., Lake Worth, Fla., suburb of Palm Beach. Palm Beach newspapers took cognizance of her age by publishing glowing accounts of the garden party.

She was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Engle in the airplane ride. Mr. Engle being the manager of the Palm Beach airport. Incidentally, she was invited to take another airplane ride on her 91st anniversary Jan. 25, 1940.

The party was given by Mr. and Mrs. W. McNair at their home in 419 South J st. The guests included East Liverpool folk who are wintering in Florida and former residents of the city now living in the south permanently. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Lee C. Cooper of Springdale st. and Frank E. Delrick of Lake Worth, a nephew of the honor guest.

During the celebration Mrs. Agner said that between her 70th and 90th birthday she completed 196 quilts, an average of almost 10 a year. She attributed her long life to the fact that she has "constantly engaged in constructive work which keeps one's mind from ailments." She also noted that she has always eaten substantial food and was moderate in all things.

This was her first visit to Florida. In an interview to newspaper reporters she referred to the state as "God's country."

When a young woman, Mrs. Agner assisted a Mrs. Bean in operating a restaurant in Wellsville. Mrs. Agner recalls having served supper to the Confederate raider, Gen. John Morgan after his capture on the Crubaugh farm near West Point.

She has 10 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

ARCTIC BIRDS VISIT MONTANA

BUTTE, Mont.—This city is entertaining its regular annual guests from above the Arctic circle. They are birds, a little larger than the sparrow, known as Bohemian waxwings. They come down from the north each year about a month and then return to their nesting grounds.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will devote you to dances and parties. BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more pep, resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!

—How To Keep Well—
Improved Quality
In Children Care
Encourages U. S.
Bigger, Better Race Seen
As Result Of Advance
In Pediatric Science

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE COMING generation seems to be growing taller and larger than its parents. Whether this is due to better care and the improvement in pediatric knowledge or is due to the workings of natural selection is debatable.

Certainly there is no question about the improved quality of the science of pediatrics, which has to do with the hygiene and care of infants and children. The striking and dramatic example of this is the care of the quintuplets. Never before in the history of the world has a set of quintuplets been raised to childhood, but then never before in the history of the world has our knowledge of how to feed and care for infants been so complete.

Disease Protection
And even more important than that, never has our knowledge of how to protect infants from contagious diseases been so complete. The quintuplets survived and thrived because this knowledge was applied to them in the most exact and efficient manner.

But this knowledge and these methods are being spread out and diffused throughout the civilized world. The average care of an infant today in the average home is as far superior to that of fifty years ago, as the care of fifty years ago was superior to the care of the infants in the Stone Age.

Certainly this thought suggests itself on considering the reports of the changed tables of height and weight in an unselected group of children, brought up in the modern manner. No institutionalization took place as was the case with the quintuplets. The supervision was carried out at home and consisted of examination by the doctor twice a month up to three months, once a month until the end of the first year, every three months to two years, and twice a year until the age of five.

This, of course, meant that advice as to diet, clothing, bathing and preventive immunization was given by competent doctors and carried out by intelligent parents.

Specifically, in detail the diet came up to a simple, simple requirement. It was ample in caloric requirements. There was plenty of milk and eggs during the early months and meat and liver after the half-year period. In other words, a high protein diet. The fluid intake was low, and the amount of solid food high. Emphasis was on solids rather than milk after the first year. The sugar intake was fairly low, so the fat, but the vitamin content—orange juice, cod liver oil, rice, etc.—was high.

The child was always encouraged to "grow up" as regards eating.

Sun Baths
Stripped sun baths were given daily in summer and alpine lights in winter.

The economic status of the households is important—41 percent fell in the income group from $1500 to $3000.

The results show that at the end of six months these children are on the average nearly half an inch taller and four pounds heavier than the tables heretofore used for averages would indicate.

It seems fairly plain that the results are due to an optimal degree of intelligent home management. And considering that the home were in average economic status, it gives great encouragement for the future generation.

Daily Horoscope
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, Feb. 2
RATHER "mixed influences," according to astrological testimonies, are found in this day's chart. While there may be sudden and surprising opportunities for progress and expanding good fortune, there also may be a definite obstacle or delay in reaching these desirable objectives. This might possibly have to do with the personal activities or that of the family. It is probable that strangers or distant influences may assist to a beneficial change. Secret alliances may be lucrative.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of rather conflicting conditions. There is much opportunity for gain and expanded interests, but there is a delaying, impeding or disappointing influence as well. This might be due to illness or depression. Distant matters, strangers or large interests or political organizations may figure in one's success and demand a change of plans.

A child born on this day may have varied talents, much ingenuity and skill, although disposed to "hide its light under a bushel" through morbidity, lack of confidence or physical debility.

DANGEROUS SERVICE
—by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

The Characters
Peter Mallone: A cub reporter in London.
Petronella: His loyal young sister.
James Randall: Their childhood friend.

Yesterday: Peter tackles his new job.

Life in London

PETRONELLA, helped by her friend, Marigold Earnshaw, found a three-room apartment. She took it on a year's lease. She hung cheap, bright chintz curtains, which she had made herself. She covered their divan beds with the game cheery flower-garden material. Peter helped hammer in the nails and hang their pictures and restain the shabby floors. Petronella knew that it was small, poky, and in need of redecoration, but it was the best they could afford without being an unreasonable burden on Aunt Maisie. She loved it dearly. She felt a fine feeling of possession. It was her first individual home.

Throughout the early summer, they lived as sociably as they could afford. Freedom was new to them. Peter's first misgivings with regard to his job were gradually calming. They changed gradually, to an arrogant impatience, as he mastered it. Once more, the devil of restlessness, and boredom, consumed Peter whenever he left himself time to think.

"I can't go on doing this sort of thing much longer. Take today! Find out how Mrs. Smith has been spending the money she won in the Irish Sweepstakes! Triplets at Hoxton! A centenarian (toothless old fool!) in Putney. Look at the real headlines. Spain, Russia, Germany, the economic crisis—the things that are really happening in the world!"

To escape the depression of discouragement, he filled the apartment with his friends, at all hours of day and night. They had less sleep than ever before. She found it hard to learn her shorthand, and pass her tests. The largest item of Peter's housekeeping bill was beer. A smell of stale tobacco smoke seemed to hang permanently in the sitting room.

One of the most regular visitors was Marigold Earnshaw. Marigold was engaged to the only son of Charrod's Universal Stores. He was a wealthy, weak-faced, but presentable young man.

"He's a very good pilot," Marigold told her. "He proposed to me in mid-air. In his beautiful blue cabin monoplane." "You sound as if you accepted the monoplane!" She brought this flying fiancé to the flat, once. But Jeremy Charrod preferred amusing himself in more exalted places. A gas fire, beer and conversation, soon palled on him.

But Marigold did not cease coming. She came alone.

One night, Peter followed her into the bedroom, where she had left her coat. He caught her in his arms, and held her.

"Marigold, don't go yet. Come back. The sitting room won't be the same without your copper head gleaming in the firelight. I've been staring at it; and at you, in that dress. I shall miss you terribly." She wrenched herself away. She was trembling.

She laughed at him. She put on a little black hat, with a veil. "I shouldn't have thought red hair was much attraction to you, carrots!"

"It oughtn't to be." His arm went around her.

"Honestly, Peter, I must go. I don't want to. The nicest people on earth come to your parties. But Jeremy will be waiting."

He released her like a hot plate. "Damn Jeremy!"

Romantic Fools
Marigold stopped laughing. They stood looking at one another. She had beautiful eyes. They were deeper blue than Peter's, between dark lashes. Now they were startled, lustrous, and frightened, like a child's.

"You've had an awful lot of beer, Peter."

From the way Marigold's lovely, unwise lips said it, she wanted to hear his denial. He could, if he liked, prevent her ever going anywhere with Jeremy Charrod again. He could take her in his arms now, and kiss the reason out of her.

But the contrast between the Charrod money and his present salary was chastening. He wrenched his glance away from Marigold's face.

She did not understand the abrupt change in him. Women were romantic fools, he thought. If he had let her, she would have thrown Jeremy over, gaily. For what? For nothing? And later, she'd have blamed him for it most likely.

She drew herself up within the frame of her silver fox collar. "I'm afraid, after all, I shan't be able to come next Wednesday."

Even if she hadn't any brains, he would find it hard to forget the way she looked at him.

When they had all gone, he slumped into a chair. Peter was emptying ash trays. She turned, and stood looking down at him inquiringly.

"Feeling dejected, somehow," he groaned.

learn more German, then Spanish. "But I could never do that. It takes years to become a foreign correspondent. Languages are awful."

"You might not need to speak fluently for some jobs abroad. Though I believe you'd soon learn. You're quick at them. But at least ask Rowdon if there is any possibility of an opening, if you do work tremendously hard. How is he to know you are seething with ambition? You scarcely ever speak to him, and you don't tell him."

Peter's head jerked up. "By jove, my darling girl, I believe you're right."

He sat still for a second, then bounded to his feet. He walked straight to the door.

"Where are you going?" "To ask him, now! He works late. He'll be there!"

He was back within an hour.

When he heard Rowdon's answer, Petronella was content. It conveyed a promise. "Go right ahead. You never know. We could probably use you," he had said. It brought bright new hope to Peter. Thereafter, it was her task to foster it. He started at once on a German course. She went with him, to see that he did not miss classes.

'I Love You'
Gradually, as June changed into July, the interest of people, and Petronella, became less of a temptation. Casual visitors, waited to be invited. Also, the financial situation was curbing gaiety. When men met, they talked of the alarming withdrawal of foreign funds from Germany; of the Communist riots in the Ruhr. Of the worldwide deficits facing other countries and of the budget deficit facing Great Britain.

"I just don't understand what has happened to all the money?" said Petronella, in bewilderment. She read her daily paper with this same feeling of numbness, understanding, and helpless fear. "I must try to understand it," she told herself fiercely, wrestling with the names of Chinese provinces, warlords, Communist leaders, governors, and generals.

There was a military rebellion in the north, she gathered. But beyond that, it was a constantly changing story of banditry, flood, famine, and rebellion. Tony Lance was still in China.

It was a fiercely exhausting summer for Petrel. They went to a German class on Thursdays, and Spanish conversation lessons on Tuesday nights. The other evenings, whenever Peter was at home, they sat on either side of the table in the sitting-room, hearing one another's verbs, reading Russian. As the summer advanced, London became close, and stifling.

The economic crisis broke at the beginning of August. Gold was flowing out of Britain. The emergency was so grave, that the Economic Committee of the Cabinet sat all day, in Downing Street, discussing a means of balancing the budget. Petronella and Peter went on working. They took their books to the park, and sat there till it grew dark.

It seemed to Petronella that she was always learning from sitting, and weary from learning. James provided her only real escape to pleasure. In June, Aunt Maisie had chaperoned her in Cambridge for two of the May week balls. She had danced till daylight, in a great beflowered marquee. On alternate Friday evenings, James came to town in his small sports car. He took her to dinner, a theater, or to dance.

"It isn't any life for a girl, working as you do," James told her. She defended Peter against his implication, quickly.

"I went out to Burma half-educated, I'm finishing in London, instead of Paris, or Lausanne, that's all."

"You wouldn't be expected to learn anything in a finishing school, or take examinations, or do the cooking and washing up. You're looking tired."

"It's only for a little while. It will be worth it, eventually. He will speak Russian, French, German and Spanish, moderately well, and I shall speak them badly. Peter is quick at languages. James! He'll also understand the political troubles of the world, and the gold standard."

After their Friday evenings together, they drove down to Sussex, through the fresh country air. James would kiss her, restrainedly, when she said good night. On this particular evening, he held her for a minute longer. It was a warm September night. The garden was filled with the scent of Aunt Maisie's roses. They stood on the doorstep, facing one another.

"Does this career business come first, and love a poor second?" he asked. "I've been meaning to tell you for a long time that I love you, Petrel."

Fire Losses Cut

CHICAGO — During 1938, fire losses in Chicago amounted to $5,700,000—the second lowest in 11 years—according to figures made public by Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan. The $5,712,000 lost in 1935 was the lowest since 1928 and the greatest loss during the same period was $11,055,436 in 1934. This was the year of the great stockyards' fire whose damage alone was estimated at $4,500,000.

SURGEON TO DISCUSS SOCIAL DISEASE FIGHT

Dr. C. H. Bailey To Address
Anti-Syphilis Meeting

Dr. Charles H. Bailey, local surgeon, will discuss syphilis and its prevention at a meeting of more than 100 in the Mary Patterson Memorial tonight at 8 in observance of national social hygiene day.

Sound motion pictures will be shown by Dr. John A. Murphy for the city health department's contribution to the educational health program.

The meeting is being sponsored by the City Federation of Women's clubs and arrangements are in charge of Mrs. J. Donald Thompson, chairman for the health division for the middle eastern district of the State Federation of Women's clubs.

It will be one of an estimated 5,000 meetings in observance of the day which are expected to draw more than 500,000. The slogan for the national program is "Guard against syphilis."

Objects for 1939 of the movement are:
To tell the American people the truth about syphilis, how it can be prevented and how it can be cured.

To guard against the disease in youth by strengthening efforts of church, home and school to provide better sex education, character development and preparation for marriage.

To guard against the disease in marriage and childhood by encouraging laws requiring examination for all about to marry and for expectant mothers.

To attack prostitution and quackery, two arch-accomplices of the disease.

And to support adequate voluntary and official health programs, national, state and local.

Sundown Stories
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

A LITTLE later on Willy Nilly arrived and, as they could see he was a bit tired and excited, they got him some hot supper at once.

Willy Nilly answered the questions of the Puddle Muddlers as best he could. He was almost too excited to talk.

At last came the morning and down trooped the Puddle Muddlers after Willy Nilly. The eggs had cracked and two babies were half, but not completely out in their nests.

They looked so small, so feeble and they cheeped in tiny, thin voices but to the Puddle Muddlers they were wonderful, and to their penguin parents they were the dearest babies that had ever been born in the world.

"My little pets," murmured Mrs. Johnny Penguin.

"They are beautiful, they are magnificent," trumpeted Mr. Johnny Penguin.

They were fed small pieces of fish their mother had first chewed so they would not have too much to digest.

Then Christopher Columbus Crow noticed something.

"Isn't the ground under your nest higher than it used to be?" he asked.

"Yes," answered Mr. Johnny Penguin. "We built it up to make it seem more like a mound or hill. We always nest far back from the sea on hills when we're in our own part of the world and we sometimes followed the same custom here."

But now he paid no further attention to the Puddle Muddlers, nor to their questions. Nor did they mind. Mrs. Johnny had eyes only for the chicks. Now he was watching his babies, for they were more and more breaking through their shells.

"Ah, here were their tiny wings! The dear little, little wings. Were ever wings more appealing, more welcome a sight?"

Tomorrow—"All Out."

Marry-Go-Round

TABLOID TRUTHS
A cool head on a woman maketh a warm heart in a man; but too much eagerness lowereth the temperature of his desire.

Again comes the menacing report that college men are going to wear beards. Apparently, they are determined to discourage the last flicker of romance in the hearts of modern girls. Or perhaps they are just tired of being too kissable.

To say the right thing at the right moment is not so difficult for a girl with savior faire; it's keeping her mouth shut at the right moment that requires almost superhuman effort, and sometimes genius.

The primary thing for a prospective bride to consider is not whether or not she can get along with a man's salary, but whether or not she can get along with the man. You can supplement a slender salary, but you can't do anything about a weak backbone.

There are moments when the wife of an overly popular man feels like apologizing to the rest of the girls for taking up so much of his time.

Don't waste time trying to remodel your husband. Perhaps you can change his collar and his haircut, but no woman ever made a selfish man kind, a weak man strong, a foolish man wise or a lazy man hustle, just by waving a marriage certificate over him.

If your hubby grows at being called upon to do his "homework," just remind him that standing up for 20 minutes after dinner to wipe the dishes is fine for his waistline, and that there is no stretching exercise (for his manly beauty) better than putting up the curtain rods.

Half the world is struggling to find work, these days—and that is probably because the other half is struggling to dodge it.

When a man lies between sacrificing a good time and sacrificing the truth—that's where he lies. (Copyright, 1939, K. F. S., Inc.)

New Waterford Hands Newell Season's Fifth Setback 46-22

Newell Wells High school's basketball team suffered its fifth defeat of the season when New Waterford handed it a 46 to 22 lacing in the Chester city auditorium Tuesday night.

New Waterford, taking the place of Salineville High, originally scheduled, racked up 18 decisive points in the first to Newell's three. The visitors swished in 11 more in the second to lead 19 to 8 at the intermission. Both teams drew five units in the third but the visitors opened fire again in the fourth with 12 points.

Welsh broke through the Newell man-for-man for six goals and one foul to lead individual competition. DeToro and Esterly accounted for 15 more New Waterford points and Chilsten and Yarian had five apiece.

U. S. MOTORCYCLISTS TO VIE FOR $400,000

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 1.—America's motorcycle riders will race around dirt tracks and speedways, up hills and down highways this year in quest of $400,000 in prizes, the greatest total award ever offered by the American Motorcycle association's sanctioned meets.

E. C. Smith, secretary of the association said about $425,000 was distributed to winners of 1,142 sanctioned events during 1938, but that this year's records would eclipse all others. Entry lists for the 1939 contests, Smith said, showed 33,000 contestants, indicating that practically all of the association's 17,500 members took part in one or more events.

Last year's races attracted 4,618,000 spectators, an increase of 22 percent over 1937, the previous record season. The contestant figure, Smith said, was up 28 percent in 1938 for another new high.

"There are approximately 125,000 motorcycle riders in the country," the secretary said. "But our sanctioned events are limited to the members of our association. About $35,000 will be distributed to the winners in our 12 national championships, and we expect to have close to 1,200 other sanctioned contests which will boost the prize money to around a half million."

PITT ADOPTS BIG TEN ATHLETIC RULES IN 'AMATEUR' PROGRAM

Griffith Sees No Enlarging Of Conference Club To Lower PAR FOR MATCH

Philadelphia Golf Officials Plan Declared To Be One Of 'Mutual Cooperation'

By The Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 1.—The University of Pittsburgh, expressing "determination to maintain its athletics on an amateur basis," today voluntarily placed itself under Big Ten regulations.

Full-time coaches and the university's faculty committee on athletics ratified a cooperative agreement under which Maj. John L. Griffith, veteran commissioner of the Western conference, will supervise Pitt's athletics in accordance with Big Ten rules.

"The plan is one simply of mutual cooperation," Griffith said in Chicago. "There is no movement underway that I know of to enlarge the membership of the conference." The agreement is the first made by the Big Ten with any school outside the conference.

Pitt Submits Plan

James Hagan, Pitt athletic director, said the plan was submitted by Pitt and approved by the conference, to assist the university guard against violations of eligibility, subsidization and proselytizing.

The athletic situation at Pitt has been hotly debated since the announcement more than a year ago by Chancellor John G. Bowman of the "Bowman code," a policy that placed the university's athletics on a "strictly amateur" basis.

The discussion reached a peak several months ago when 33 freshmen members of the 1938 football squad protested they were being "damned" for tuition fees. The first-year players admitted they had signed notes for tuition but asserted they were under the impression this was only "formality."

Griffith To Make Survey

Termed the best freshmen team in recent years at Pitt—where good football teams have become the rule under Dr. John Bain Stuart, the head coach—the players talked of leaving school unless an adjustment was made. The university then waived the tuition fees for one year only.

Griffith will come here to survey Pitt's athletic setup and is to receive "full information respecting the present status of athletics at the university," Hagan said.

AL MILNAR PRACTICES 'SCREWBALL' TACTICS

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 1.—Southpaw Al Milnar of the Cleveland Indians' hurling staff disclosed today that he was at work on a "screwball" for use during the coming American league season.

"I wasn't getting into many games last year," said Milnar, "so I started to make daily trips to the bullpen. Coach Johnny Bassler suggested that I try to master the screwball. I went to work."

"I'll be satisfied if my screwball is on one-third as effective as Carl Hubbell's. I may not master the pitch but it will be a handy thing to have in reserve."

Midland Defeats Zelienople For Seventh League Triumph

Special To The Review

MIDLAND, Feb. 1.—Midland Lincoln High school passers stepped to the fore in W. P. L. A. L. Section 11 competition Tuesday night when they handed Zelienople their fourth loss of the season here 41 to 33.

Weakness at the foul line prevented the upriver foe from storming the Midland tide. Zelienople made but three of 12 tries at the free line while the Crucibles completed 10 of 17.

The locals assumed command in the opening stanza with 11 points to the visitors' nine and widened the margin to 25 to 17 at the half. Midland entered the last frame with a 34 to 27 advantage.

Pete Molchan, playing his first full-time varsity game, led the triumphant Crucibles with six field goals and one foul to top scorers of both teams. His teammate, Wayne Hunter was a close second with four of each. Libby McCauley and Sammy Rosatone and "Jumbo" Vanlier contributed 14 of the remaining Midland points.

Szakelyhida, Zelienople's star forward, paced his team with four fielders. Yohn and Bagamery had three goals and a foul apiece while Druschal made two from the floor and one from the free line.

Midland varsity reserves tripped the Midland Hi-Y in the curtain raiser, 31 to 21.

TOLEDO U. SUFFERS SECOND DEFEAT ON SHIP THROUGH EAST

By The Associated Press.
A law of averages, or some other similar inevitability, seems to have caught up with the University of Toledo Rockets.

George Washington university basketballers upset the Ohio Rockets last night in the nation's capital, 46 to 29. The tilt was decided in the first half, when George Washington piled up 34 markers against Toledo's 15. Harold Chickovits, the Rockets' pace-setter, managed to corral 18 points for himself, although Bob Farris of George Washington shared individual honors with him.

In the Buckeye State, meanwhile, Ohio Northern breezed to a 45 to 39 Ohio conference victory over Findlay. Northern was pressed only in the initial period, leading 15-13 at the half. Ruby of Northern and Cindric of Findlay split honors with a dozen points apiece. Ohio Wesleyan trounced Baldwin-Wallace, 55 to 33, as Rohr and Hartman, the big sparks, plugged, bagged 14 points each. Fischer, 6-2 center, nosed them out, however, with 15 units. Wesleyan led at the half, 18-8.
